

Fisheyes

The 50 plus black & white and color pictures included in this hardcover sixty-six page monograph were taken with a Nikon Fisheye lens and were made over a period of 42 years. The subjects included a young Ted Kennedy campaigning for a Senate Seat as well as Boston Pops Maestro Arthur Fielder at work and at home. Other images include colorful Trio Indians of the Amazon Basin and Libyan Taurags deep in the Sahara Desert. The photographers fascination with the images this particular lens produced was the natural extension of a series of pinhole camera experiments he had done earlier. Both sets of images produced the distinctive round, spherical photographs as well as images with huge depth of field. Unlike pinhole photos, the fisheyes images are much sharper. With a few exceptions, these fisheyes were shot after the photo coverage of the subject with more standard lenses was complete. Take a visual safari into the world where all the subjects are captured in an extremely wide-angle view that is much more like the human eye sees than the much narrower views the still camera usually captures. Enjoy seeing normal, everyday subjects as well as visual icons in a different way than you ve ever seen them before. There are fantastic images included in this monograph that have not been seen or published anywhere else.
